

Public Forum: Video Surveillance in Canada

1:00 pm – 4:00 pm
June 4, 2013

Room 728, Bissell Bldg.
140 St. George Street
University of Toronto

When you walk around the city, you are being WATCHED. You are being SORTED. What do YOU know about your privacy rights? How should Canadian video surveillance policy develop in the future and who should have a voice in the process?

Do you, as Canadians, care about the privacy implications of current video information practices and their implications for individual visual privacy?

A public forum on Video Surveillance Practices and Policy in Canada will engage people in a broader discussion about video surveillance issues. The forum will feature a new position paper on Surveillance by the Information and Privacy Commissioner of Ontario, Canada, Dr. Ann Cavoukian and a panel discussion which will include representation from government, industry, civil society, and academe.

This public forum is part of the larger research project, "Who is Watching You? And Why?" funded by the Office of the Privacy Commissioner of Canada.

Itinerary

Time	Activity	Description
1:00 pm	Welcome	Introduction to project & primer for discussion
1:30 pm	IPC announcement	Dr. Ann Cavoukian , Information and Privacy Commissioner of Ontario, Canada, will present the latest IPC paper on surveillance and privacy.
2:00 pm	Panel Discussion	Professor Andrew Clement (Moderator) Panelists Professor Lisa Austin , Faculty of Law, University of Toronto Dr. Ann Cavoukian , Information and Privacy Commissioner, Ontario, Canada Abby Dushman , Director, Public Safety Program, Canadian Civil Liberties Association John Wunderlich , Privacy and Security Consultant Representative from Office of the Privacy Commissioner of Canada , TBA
3:45	Closing Remarks

Contact: joseph.ferenbok@utoronto.ca / www.surveillancerights.ca